Dr. Watanabe Writes Of Physics And Teen Agers With Equal Authority

BY NANCY LOFTON

Maybe he understands time better than other people because he is a theoretical physicist. Maybe he has some secret formula for enjoying 64 hours in a day instead of the rather limited 24 the rest of us manage. Whatever the causes, Dr. Michael Satoshi Watanabe of the Engineering Department at the Naval Post Graduate School in Monterey, has already behind him a fruitful life, and, although he looks sage, he's far from sere.

It seems probable he is a man of considerable wisdom. What theoretical physicists think about when they work at their professions I don't know. My ignorance abashed me enough so that I didn't ask, but we did talk of Japanese education, of the relations between physics, painting and music, of the beauty of geometry, the idealism of mathematics and Japanese Woman Suffrage. That is a fairly wide range, even to a man at home with infinity.

"Pragmatism, Freudianism and permissiveness have lowered the level of education", he said. I'll leave you to think about that comment for a few paragraphs while we examine the Japanese schools and other experiences which helped to produce Dr. Watanabe.

Son of the Minister of Justice in the Japanese Government, Michael Satoshi Watanabe was eligible to attend the Peers' School, a Spartan establishment run by General Nogi. This school had been established in the late 19th Century as part of a program of imperial reform. The Japanese feudal lords were to be appeased and brought into harmony with the government by being made into a new nobility. The imperial household was given the task of educating the children of this new nobility with the princes and princesses. There was no coddling. Discipline was strict. Mathematics was well taught and by the end of approximately the sixth grade children were ready for algebra. The study of English began in the fifth grade. There were good science classes in biology and physics with ample demonstration.

Earlier the Japanese schools had been divided into a primary school of six years, a junior school of five years, a high school of three years and a college of four years, followed by university training for those who showed aptitude for study. One of the results of the first world war was a period of great prosperity for Japan. In this period of prosperity liberalism and democracy flourished. Educational reform was produced by this wave of liberalism, and the seven-year high school Satoshi Watanabe next attended was the first of these liberalized schools to be established. This was the Tokyo High School, a government school, run by a very liberal principal who encouraged the individualistic point of view and opposed the traditional collective Japanese attitude. There was a dormitory with a room for every student. The school was inspired with the energy of reform. Perhaps as a result of this new spirit many of the graduates of this school became outstanding men.

The students of this school were not selected in any random fashion. Anyone could apply for entrance but there was a three-day entrance examination. Most of the

City Council Frowns On Citizens' Committee As Candidate Forum Sponsor

The Carmel Business Association will sponsor a town meeting, probably on March 28, at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium, to give the voters an opportunity to meet the candidates running for city council in the April election. There are nine candidates running for three council vacancies.

August Nieto, president of the Business Association, told the Pine Cone this morning, that he would call the meeting, when he learned the city council, at its regular meeting last night, had frowned on a proposal of the Citizens' Advisory Committee to the Planning Commission to sponsor the traditional candidates' meeting, and expressed a preference for the Business Association to be the sponsors, as in the past.

The council pointed out that the Citizens' Advisory Committee is a semi-official body. It is made up of council appointees and three of the council are running for re-election. A group that is not associated with the administration would be more appropriate spon-

Martin Heads Group To Study Re-Zoning Of Down Coast Area

Carmel Martin, veteran county planner, is chairman of the committee appointed by the County Planning Commission to investigate possible future development of the coast area south of Carmel as far as the county line, in an endeavor to help the County Planning group draw up a Master Plan for the region. Working with him will be Walter Tavernetti, Nicholas Roosevelt, Malcolm Millard, Charles Fuller, Bruce Crain and Joe Thorn.

Residents of the coast area will be interviewed, as well as interested organizations, such as the Lobos League, especially in regard to retaining or abolishing commercial zones now existing on the plan for the region, or establishing other commercial zones on the new plan, or as need arises. Residential zoning will also be considered.

Recommendations of the committee will be transmitted to the Planning Board staff, which will also devote study time to the overall Master Plan formation. The coast region "has never been fully studied", according to Planning Commission Chairman Thomas Elston. A zoning plan was drawn up some 20 years ago with Carmel

Community Plans Party For Peter

Citizens of Carmel will honor retiring City Clerk Peter Mawdsley with a dinner to be held on April 3 at La Playa Hotel starting at 7:00 o'clock.

The dinner is a spontaneous gesture of affection for Peter from those who have known him either as a friend and neighbor or in his official capacities during his 34 years of living in Carmel.

Peter Mawdsley came here in 1922 and in 1938 was made deputy city clerk and assessor to assist the late Saidee Van Brower. Following her death in 1943 he was appointed to fill her position and was elected to be City Clerk and Assessor in 1944, a position he has held ever since.

Peter has also been financial advisor to the Carmel Unified School Board since 1940. The year previous to this he served as President of the School Board, appointed by County Superintendent Gladys Stone to this position while Carmel was forming an independent High School district and unifying with the already established elementary district.

Only 200 tickets are available for the dinner and already half of these have been taken. The remaining tickets may be obtained at the office of P. A. McCreery, Putnam and Raggett, or at La Playa Hotel.

Show Opens In Forest Theatre In The Ground

Dangerous Corner, a suspense-drama by J. B. Priestly, will open on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Forest Theater-in-the-Ground and run again on Saturday and Sunday evenings at the same time.

Cole Weston will direct the marital-psychological play, considered Priestly's best effort in the field of drama. The cast will include Virginia Frank, (Virginia Mikulak) who with her husband, Karl, has returned to Carmel to live after an absence of nine years. She will be remembered for performances in The Women and Dream Girl. In Dangerous Corner Virginia will take the part of Freda. Others in the cast are Gertrude Chappell, (Olwen) star of Skylark at the Golden Bough's Theater in the Round; Hilary Urwick, (Stanton) making his first appearance on the Carmel stage; Edgar and Betsi Pye; Ron Bostwick and Helen Weston.

The play will run for three successive week ends.

Gastone Usigli Dies In San Francisco

Gastone Usigli, conductor of Carmel's Bach Festival, died today in San Francisco apparently of a heart attack. He was 59 years old.

He had just come from directing a program for Italy's president, Giovanni Gronchi, at the Italian Consulate when he complained of feeling ill. His wife, Elizabeth, immediately called a physician but Usigli died shortly afterward.

Usigli came to San Francisco in 1926 from Venice. Besides the Bach Festival he directed the Marin Symphony Orchestra, taught piano, voice and composition. He had conducted the San Francisco Symphony and other orchestras in his own compositions.

Gentlemen I Am Mad

The following letter was read at last night's city council meeting.

Box 2089, Carmel.
February 22, 1956,

Carmel City Council,
Commissioner Streets and Parks, et al.

Gentlemen:

I am MAD!

I live in Carmel because I appreciate the natural beauties, the lovely trees and woodlands, and because I have felt that our city officials are dedicated to maintaining the natural appeal of Carmel.

Yet, yesterday, as happens at this time every year, just as the lovely silver wattle acacia at the corner of my property bursts into a golden, fragrant cloud of beauty, without a "by-your-leave," along comes a city truck, and the worker proceeds to chop off all the blossom-laden lower branches.

When I stormed out to inquire the reasoning behind such depredation, I was answered with this statement: "The boss says, 'cut it off'; We have to clear the corner so people can see who's coming. Besides, they're no good in the house, give people headaches and make a mess."

Granted, the branches do hang down for several weeks of the year, but I am able to keep it trimmed by cutting sprays for decorative purposes. I don't suffer from acacia headaches, and I love the golden sprays in a blue-green crystal bowl. As for the safety measure, any one who drives down-grade into a semi-obstructed intersection without stopping for clearance, is a moron and needs exterminating . . .

Of course, city crewmen never come in the fall to trim dead branches and clean up seed pods! As I rake the city street and pay to have the debris hauled away, I feel it is a small price to pay for the glory of Spring.

Were I to venture to trim one limb of a city tree, I can imagine the speed with which I would be hailed as a despoiler of public property.

I could wish for more aesthetic principles and less "efficiency."

Indignantly yours,
Mrs. Julian von Meier,
N.E. corner 3rd and Santa Rita.

The Council instructed Street Superintendent William Askew to avoid trimming flowering shrubs during the blooming season, unless public safety is involved.

FREMONT BREEZES TO WIN IN CARMEL HOOP TOURNEY

Sparked by a wee bit of a lad named Bub Bowling, the Fremont Indians out of Sunnyvale romped to a 71-33 win over the Monterey Toreadores Saturday night to wrap up the 1956 Carmel Invitational Tournament in real convincing fashion. The big Indians went to the front at the start of the game and had everything well under control after the first five minutes. Perfect foils for the clever Bowling were Fremont's front line players who averaged well over six feet and hit with deadly accuracy from any spot in the front court. While the big boys up front were sweeping the boards at both ends of the packed gymnasium, little Bub was faking through the Monterey zone defense and setting up easy crip shots for the champions.

Carmel High's rated Padres proved again they were the class of the CCAL B division by whipping Gonzales, 55 to 38, to win the third-place trophy. Led by George Wightman's 21-point performance, Carmel took an early lead and were using the reserves freely during the second and fourth quarters. Mervin Sutton, Carmel reserve center, turned in his best effort of the season, chipping in with 11 points and doing a fine job of rebounding.

Pacific Grove got fine scoring from Ron Bain, Eddie Estaban, Jim Fisher, and Dayton House to cop the consolation trophy, beating a colorful Gustine quintet, 60 to 56. Gustine had the smallest team in the tournament but enjoyed terrific support from the overflow crowds which swarmed to the Carmel gym for the three-night tourney.

The coveted individual trophy for the most valuable player was awarded to Fremont's Bub Bowling, the clever junior guard. This lad will be back for further tournament action next year and fans who missed his brilliant play this year should make an effort to catch him in the 1957 tournament.

An all-tournament team which would make any high school coach drool over his championship chances was selected following the tournament. Fremont placed MVP Bowling and Phil Schwartz, a 6-3 rebound ace who was outstanding in all games played. King City's Joe Cozby was a standout for the center spot, while Mike Mosolf, Carmel, and Dwight Davenport, Gustine, were selected for their playmaking ability from the backline.

PADRES OPEN BASEBALL SEASON AT SANTA CRUZ

Carmel High School's varsity baseball team journeys to Santa Cruz tomorrow afternoon for a non-league joust with the class-A Cardinals. With only a week's practice under their belts, the Carmel lads will bank heavily on the pitching arms of Dick Jennings and Mike Mosolf to hold the Cardinals in check. Fresh off the basketball court, Jennings and Mosolf have been doing enough throwing to round into pitching condition and will divide the hurling chores over the seven-inning route. Both pitchers are experienced veterans with three seasons of league play to their credit. At the important catching spot, the Padres will have Bob Michela who figures to be the best prep receiver in this area. Weighing in at 190-pounds, Michela is exceptionally fast, has an accurate throwing arm, and is a good handler of pitchers. The first-base position is manned by Bill McCormack and Ron Huffman who will alternate at the spot against right and left hand pitching. Ron swings from the port side and will be used against the right handers while McCormack will take over the bag when the southpaws are on the mound. When McCormack isn't stationed at first-base he is a capable and speedy outfielder. Jim Konrad and Bill Hook make up the keystone combination and this diminutive duo could be the classiest in the league. Konrad has played three years of varsity ball while Hook is a varsity transfer from Frankfurt, Germany. Six capable flychasers are available for duty and the trio which shows the most hitting power will draw the starting nod. West Whittaker and George Wightman are out for the left-field spot, Kyrk Reid and Clyde Klaumann share the centerfield duties, with Tim O'Shea and Bill McCormack stationed in right.

Coach Tom Burt has a veteran team at Santa Cruz and most of the Cardinal players have come up through the Little and Babe Ruth Leagues. Carmel players well remember their last game at Seahawk Stadium when the Cardinals clipped them 22-17 in a game called at the end of the fifth inning.

CARMEL JV ENTERTAINS SANTA CRUZ TOMORROW

While the varsity teams of the two schools are taking their swings at the Seahawk in Santa Cruz, the junior-varsity clubs will be squaring off at the Carmel High diamond. Game time is 4:00 o'clock and it will mark the opening action for both junior-varsity teams.

Carmel's 23-man junior-varsity squad has been working out for two weeks and the players are beginning to find their way around the bases. Except for Andy Gray, Neil Giarratana and Joe Mason, who have junior legion experience, the squad is lacking in baseball experience. Pitching candidates are Parker Pollock, Bob Durbrow, and Hal Gregerson, all right-handers. Joe Mason and Newt Rosenfeld are the only catching candidates, with Mason holding a slight experience edge. Joe has worked as varsity batting practice catcher and has learned not to blink when the ball clears the bat. Infielders battling for spots on the team are Fred Nelson, Jack Faia, Walt Helm, John Morse, Mike O'Shea, Pete Osborne, Mike Gahagan, Pete Hensel, Andy Gray and Dale Dawson. Outfield candidates are Neil Giarratana, Tony Frey, Bill Harder, George Westcott and Larry Dufur.

1000 Yankee Point Acres Change Hands

Charles G. Sawyer, developer of Yankee Point Acres subdivision, this week announced the sale of 1,000 acres of his Carmel Riviera holdings to Le Forust, Inc, a newly founded corporation with D. J. Rust of Yankee Point as president. The property extends approximately one and a half miles on each side of Highway 1, a mile south of Highlands Inn.

Rust, president of Le Forust, is general manager of Rylock Screen Company of San Leandro and also president of several Stockton corporations. Vice-president of the new company is Harry M. Pforsich, resident of Mal Paso Road in the Carmel Riviera. He is a manufacturer's representative with offices in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle. Third officer of Le Forust is secretary-treasurer Percy S. Webster of Scenic Drive, Carmel, a corporation attorney in Stockton.

Charles Sawyer will be general manager of the new company and will retain his Yankee Point subdivision.

Fanny Reeves

Miss Fanny Reeves died in a Salinas Hospital early yesterday morning at the age of 87.

Miss Reeves was born in Brighton, Sussex, England, on July 22, 1868. She came to the United States in 1911 and to California the following year, making her home first in Los Gatos and then in Carmel where she remained for 33 years. Her home was at Junipero and Sixth Streets, Miss Reeves was a palmist and clairvoyant.

Survivors are a brother living in England and a nephew, David L. Anderson of Watsonville.

Funeral services for Miss Reeves will be held on Monday morning at 11:00 o'clock in Paul's Mortuary.

HONOR STUDENTS AT MPC

Carmel students among the top 24 who made the honor roll at Monterey Peninsula College for the fall semester are Patricia Doolittle, Marilyn Henderson, Robert R. Martin, Walter Reynolds, Marianne Soderberg and Roy Yater. These students all earned an "A" average. "B"-average students from this area were Craig Curran and Rene Requiro.

Lowell Dye, Edward Goodrick, Theodore Lafleur, Denise Wells and Bruce Bixler were Carmel representatives among the honor roll "B" average students.

TALK ON "GENERAL JOE"

The late General Joseph Stilwell will be the subject of the talk which General Frank Dorn will give to the Carmel Lions Club on the evening of March 20.

Dorn was military aide to General Stilwell for ten years and will discuss the China - Burma - India campaign and subsequent events.

General Stilwell maintained a home in Carmel during the C.B.I. period and Mrs. Stilwell still occupies this house which she and her husband built on Carmel Point. General Dorn is also a resident of Carmel.

Carmel Lions may bring guests to this meeting.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Carmel has turned into a Golden Village. March brings with it the lush Spring color and all along our roadsides, in gardens and along the hills, golden yellow is the order of the day. Genista, acacia and broom are the predominating shrubs to give forth generously in our early Spring. To the casual eye, these three plants look similar, yet there is vast difference in both habits and habitat of genista, acacia and broom.

Genista, belonging to the pea family, comes to us from Asia and parts of Africa. The wild variety of genista, indigenous to California, blooms the entire year with small, inconspicuous yellow flowers which in their turn become grey pods of seeds. A far cry from the wild genista are the many hybridized forms we see in gardens. In the east one of the florist's favorites is Genista canariensis. We see this variety all around us here, but take a trip to New York and you will pay through the nose for one small bunch. Any resident of Monterey Peninsula, wishing to have continued bloom in a garden, plant Genista canariensis. After the plant has once taken root, all your cares are over. Even watering can be dispensed with in the case of genista.

Cytisus (known to us low-brows as broom) is an odd fellow, throwing forth flowers ahead of foliage. Broom grows like tall, stiff grass and the flowers are continuous all along the stalk. Wild broom came to us from Asia and Africa, but you should see the hybridized varieties! The color of these patented brooms, runs a gamut of rainbow hues.

Cytisis is generally called Scotch broom, why I will never know since the encyclopedia states firmly that broom is a native of Asia. Both genista and cytisis belong to the pea family, and this is the only relationship I can discover, since the two plants are diverse in both growth and blossoms.

When we come to the acacia we take in a whole forest of varieties. The one most favored in California is acacia baileyana, all around us today bringing joy to some, hay fever to others. Acacia baileyana has graceful grey foliage and bears a shower of golden plumes that scent the air and beautify our roadsides. Next in popularity, is acacia dealbata which grows into sizable trees, bearing a profusion of mustard color plumes. My favorite for hedges, and also for feature planting, is acacia verticillata. This fellow is a must for windbreak and close hedges. Right now, verticillata is covered with lemon-colored tassels and doing its duty all over the place as a guard against deer and maraudering animals. Verticillata grows like magic and to my way of thinking, is far superior to the prevalent cypress hedges that have a way of dying off in the middle and causing all sorts of trouble. To the casual eye, one can hardly tell the difference between a cypress hedge and a verticillata hedge. The difference in cost is considerable, since verticillata is one of the least expensive plants in the nursery while cypress is so slow growing that the nurseryman must up his price. Our acacias come to us from Australia.

Charles Grant Files For State Senator

Charles B. Grant, Monterey real estate broker and former owner of Radio Station KDON, yesterday filed his declaration of candidacy for state senator from this district.

He is the second Republican to announce his intention to run against the incumbent Democrat, Fred Farr of Carmel. John N. Shephard, Monterey attorney, declared his candidacy February 2.

Born June 20, 1910, in Montreal, Charles B. Grant was brought to the United States by his parents when he was three years old. The Grant family established their home in Connecticut, where Charles was educated in public schools, prepped at Kent School and then entered the University of Pennsylvania. Post-college years took him to New York, where he was associated with an investment and accounting firm. In 1934, Mr. Grant first came to California, where he was active in radio production prior to the war years, and in the airplane industry during World War II. Shortly after his arrival in Carmel in 1948, he joined the realty firm owned by Harrison Godwin, an activity which he continued until he purchased his franchise of the Monterey-Salinas radio station in 1952. He makes his home in Del Monte Forest with his wife and sons, Lawrence 21, and Charles, 15.

Frank Myers

Frank H. Myers, Peninsula artist, whose portrait of Andy Jacobsen was unveiled on Monday in the Supervisor Chambers at Salinas Court House, died unexpectedly last night in San Francisco.

Mr. Myers was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, and began his art studies at Cincinnati Art Academy. He transferred to the Pennsylvania Academy of fine arts and then went to Europe for further study at the School of Fine Arts in Fontainebleau, France, and painted in France, Spain and Italy.

On his return to the United States Frank Myers was for 20 years a member of the faculty of Cincinnati Art Academy and spent summers in New England at Rockport, Provincetown and Bar Harbor.

Myers found that he took greatest delight in painting the ocean and is known particularly for his seascapes.

He first came to the Monterey Peninsula as a visitor in 1928 and 1935 and in 1940 settled here permanently in Pacific Grove.

Frank Myers was a member of the Carmel Art Association, and served on the board of directors. His work is represented in collections of paintings in France, Switzerland and the United States. He has exhibited in the Paris Salon and executed many murals, portrait commissions and decorations in Cincinnati. His show Sea, Ships and Shore has been an annual feature at the Pebble Beach Galleries for the past five years.

He is survived by his wife, Ella, and a son.

Funeral services as yet unannounced will be in charge of Paul Mortuary.

MISS FRANCES ROBINSON
invites anyone interested in joining her 7th Annual Grand Tour of Europe (leaving New York June 19) to meet her in Carmel Saturday, March 10.

Conservation On The March

CALIFORNIA
CONSERVATION WEEK

The 22nd observance of California Conservation Week takes place from March 7-14. This has been sponsored from the beginning in 1935 by the California Conservation Council, of which Miss Pearl Chase of Santa Barbara is the Executive Vice-President. Very largely through her untiring energy and enthusiasm it has been developed into a highly successful educational activity.

The Program Guide sent out this year lists eight different topics, built up around the theme: "Conservation Depends upon Cooperation". As an indication of the wide range of interests covered by the conservation movement it might be well to list these topics.

1. Conservation Bird and Arbor Day. This is widely celebrated in schools on March 7, the birthday of Luther Burbank. This is the first day of California Conservation Week.

2. How to protect our forests, fields, and watersheds? Fire and flood prevention are the main activities here. How to improve them is an important question.

3. Why is water California's greatest problem? Inquiry into the reasons for a universally acknowledged fact.

4. How protect our scenic and recreation areas? Intangible values are sometimes hard to explain to business men and politicians. Recent conservation victories prove that, once understood by Mr. Average Citizen, he rises strongly to protect them.

5. What does conservation mean to you? Something to start students thinking.

6. How save the soil, prevent waste of food and fibre? Prevention of erosion is a big problem, now being tackled determinedly all over the country.

7. Is conservation of oil, gas and minerals vital? Non-renewable resources need especial efforts for waste prevention.

8. What does wildlife conservation mean to you? A question first of awareness, then of management.

These eight topics cover the entire field of conservation. The California Conservation Council publishes many leaflets on various aspects of the subject which can be purchased at a very small cost. One such leaflet of particular interest to me is "National Parks and Monuments in California", an eight-page illustrated publication describing the state's four national parks and eight national monuments. The address of the Council is 912 Santa Barbara St., Santa Barbara, California.

I have just been examining a new book published by the National Association of Biology Teachers, entitled "Handbook for Teaching of Conservation and Resource-Use". This is not a textbook but a "guide to some of the outstanding examples of good conservation teaching in the U. S." The Carmel High School project under Miss Enid Larson is among them. It is intended for high school use and was prepared after a survey indicated that conservation as a subject was emphasized more in elementary schools than in high schools.

There is an immense amount of useful information in the book for teachers in any school and it is an eye-opener for the layman who has been wondering whether the schools are awake to the need for teaching conservation. The new generation should be much better informed in this field than its elders.

Major Walter L. Bartley, Jr., who returned here in February after a year and a half in Korea, is now adjutant of Combat Training at Fort Benning, Georgia. Major Bartley's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Bartley of Carmel Valley. His wife, Nancy, and three sons, Henry, Geoffrey and Mark, were peninsula residents during the time Major Bartley was overseas.

The senior Bartleys came here two years ago from Connecticut, when Mr. Bartley retired as superintendent of the General Motors Plant at Bristol.

Dr. Watanabe Writes Of Physics And Teen Agers With Authority

applicants prepared for a year or two before the exams and there were at least ten applicants for every vacancy in the student body. Competition was eager and those accepted faced a schedule which included integral and differential calculus, differential equations sometimes as early as the tenth grade, chemistry, physics, biology, Japanese literature, history, philosophy, ethics and a thorough study of at least two foreign languages. These were required of all students.

There was in those years between wars a great respect for learning itself. Learning was not regarded as a tool but was respected for its intrinsic merit. The literature, science and philosophy of Germany, France and the United States were studied and read. The Japanese were quick to translate.

This seven-year school was considered the time for general education and into its years was packed as much as the average American student encounters in both high school and college. Here Satoshi Watanabe continued his study of English and began the study of French, rounding out his education with three years of German. French culture made the strongest impression.

"The Japanese are like the French," he observed. "They have a sense of grace, beauty and charm. Both the Japanese and the French are a visual people." After graduating from the Tokyo Imperial University as a physics major, he attended the University of Paris. Watanabe's father was a Francophile, giving constant encouragement in the study of French literature and language, so that when the French government established a fellowship for six Japanese students, Watanabe applied and was accepted. Shortly he found himself the possessor of a doctorate in theoretical physics and a German wife, both acquired in the University of Paris. His wife was a graduate student in literature.

Leaving France, the Watanabes went first to Japan, where Dr. Watanabe taught physics in the Meteorological College, then to Germany where they settled down at the University of Leipzig. Research in nuclear physics occupied Dr. Watanabe there. In 1939 their son Francis was born, just as the war broke out, and with considerable difficulty the Watanabes left Germany, and entered the United States by way of Denmark. Even now, 17 years later, Dr. Watanabe shudders slightly at the memory of their journey. The baby had double pneumonia and Mrs. Watanabe was also very ill.

Back to Japan they went to a teaching position at the University of Tokyo throughout the war years. After the war, Dr. Watanabe worked for the American forces, helping to devise a new educational program for the Japanese schools.

His goal was to find ways of strengthening democratic self-government in Japan through education. His problems were not unrelated to those faced by American teachers.

"My emphasis," he said, "was always this: Japanese education was too centralized. Everything was supervised by the central government. Imperial edict was the Bible of Japanese education. Frankly, I thought this was not good. I wanted to establish more local control and also to introduce more of the pragmatic approach to combat the traditional Japanese attitude toward education which had been greatly affected by German idealism as expressed by Kant and Hegel. The war had, of course, brought about more practical training in education. There was much practice without theory offered students, who were sometimes taught to use the slide rule without even understanding logarithms."

It interested me that Dr. Watanabe said Japanese woman suffrage came about probably because Japanese women found themselves doing everything during the war, yet were given no voice in a country they were obviously maintaining by their labor. Their political independence was a direct result of their economic independence.

During this post-war period Dr. Watanabe also taught at Saint Paul's University in Tokyo, an Episcopal school, and worked for Radio Tokyo. I gather from the way he spoke that he enjoyed most a radio program of advice to teen-age girls on which he worked with great enthusiasm, discussing standards of behavior and trying to work out with the girls some solutions to their puzzling situation in post-war Japan. He conducted a forum over Radio Tokyo and recollects one exciting evening upon which he felt like Saint George facing the dragon as he led a discussion on religion versus science and found a large group of communists championing the cause of science at the expense of religion. Dr. Watanabe held his ground that the two must be reconciled, that both the religious and the scientific point of view have validity and give information about reality.

The Watanabes came to the United States when Mrs. Watanabe received an invitation to teach German, French and Japanese at Southwestern University in Texas. Dr. Watanabe was called first to Wayne University to teach physics and then to the Naval Post Graduate School. Mrs. Watanabe is now teaching at Mary Washington College in Virginia, and during her months away from home, their son remains here with his father and attends Monterey Union High School.

In addition to his teaching and research Dr. Watanabe has written extensively on the problems of young people. He is a contributor to the large Japanese journals and has been currently working on a study of juvenile delinquency in America. He has also published in scientific journals, and his books include Concept of Time and Atomic Eenergy: A Promenade in Physics and World Government, both published in Japanese.

To return to his provocative statement about the effect of "pragmatism, Freudianism and permissiveness" on education, Dr. Watanabe believes that education which teaches only that which is of immediate practical value is no education at all. There are many things to be learned under the name of education which are of long term value, but may seem of slight immediate merit. To train a theoretical physicist something more than a practical education is required. A student does well maybe to learn a little more than he feels is necessary for the immediate present. He believes also that it may be unwise for educators, following current psychological trends, to encourage the conformist tendencies of teen-age students as much as they have. He believes it would be wiser to work at developing the natural idealism of young people, which might be a better way for them to express their increasing maturity. On the subject of permissiveness, it is only sufficient to record that Dr. Watanabe, like other parents and teachers, finds there are definite limits to what can be accomplished by a door mat. There is more to education than permitting children to learn.

LIKE THE TREE

A WATER SYSTEM IS A GROWING THING

As the tree sends out its branches its trunk and roots must grow to support them, and its roots must reach out to find the water necessary to feed them. And so it is with a water supply system. When a water system builds branches into new service areas it must strengthen and expand its foundation structure of transmission mains and pipelines, and in some cases build its lines for great distances to reach a water supply.

To keep a water system growing at all points requires the investment of substantial sums annually. During the last five years more than $2,000,000 has been invested in this system for the improvements necessary to maintain a high standard of service at all times, bringing the total plant cost to $8,847,000. To continue this program of expansion a broad schedule of new construction has been planned for 1956, a schedule which will require an additional investment of approximately $675,000.

Expanding a water system today is more expensive than it was a few years ago because of the effect of inflation on the cost of materials and labor. A greater investment per unit of work is required.

California Water & Telephone Company

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thoruburg

Next week, March 11 through 17, is California Library Week. The idea was originated, and is sponsored, by the California Library Association. The libraries in the state are observing their special week in as many ways as possible. To libraries and to the loyal patrons who frequent them, books are basic. This year, Califnia Library Week tries to stress the services libraries offer.

Many libraries today offer other materials besides books, such as films, phonograph records, maps, magazines, pictures both framed and unframed, unbound materials in vertical files, and newspapers on film with film readers. We are a small library and do not have all of these things, but what we do have we really use. Our library has a recently overhauled vertical file of pamphlet material including many maps, an up to date collection of telephone books from all the main cities of California and many from out of the state, interlibrary loan service from both the county and state libraries, telephone reference service, magazines both foreign and American, and several newspapers.

But even more than these, we have a strong desire to serve the community to the best of our ability, a spirit of hospitality, and a cheerful fire in the great fireplace in the evenings, with a row of comfortable chairs for guests to lounge in when they draw near the fire for an hour or two of reading. Last week a friend of the library paused near the desk on his way out and said, "I like this better than any other club I belong to", and of course that is just what we love to hear.

We are having our identification party all next week, and we hope to have all the unknown pictures in the Nixon collection identified by the end of the week. We shall also have on exhibit other pictures from the collection. They will be on the balcony floor so plan to climb ten steps to see your friends as they looked in the early days of Carmel.

We had planned to have a sort of open house on Sunday to issue in the week, but since we are always open on Sundays, it seemed a little superfluous to call it open house. But if you have some extra time on Sunday, cime in to look at the Nixon pictures and anything else you have not yet seen in our library, including the Weston photographs in the main reading room.

We are hard at work at our preregistering of old patrons, for our new charging system. Our plan to start with it the first of March was abandoned when we learned that the necessary supplies could not get here in time. They have come, we are working, and the new system should start about the middle of the month.

Four new novels for next week are Jubilee by John Brick, Warhorse by John Cunningham. The Farther Shore by Robert Coates, and Peace at Bowling Green by Alfred Crabb.

For non-fiction, we have Theatre '55, edited by John Chapman, which contains reading versions of the twelve best plays of the year. Dr. Benjamin Spock has a new one entitled Feeding Your Baby and Child, the title of which is self-explanatory, and the fact that it is by Dr. Spock is all the recommendation that it needs. Also for next week is The Call to Honour, volume one of the memoirs of General De Gaulle. We shall not buy volume two for the reason that it contains merely the translations of supporting documents mentioned in volume one. A monumental work on the cathedral of Notre Dame by Temko, is called Notre Dame of Paris, the Biography of a Cathedral. There are more, an especially good lot this week, but you must come in to see them. Always remember that books can open the windows of the world for you.

P. G. and E. and your appliance dealer invite you to try an automatic dryer free for 10 days!

P. G. and E. believes an automatic clothes dryer is one of the greatest labor-savers to come along in years. So does your appliance dealer.

But why take our word for it? Instead, we invite you to prove it for yourself—by trying one free for 10 days right in your own home!

How to get your free home trial:

Simply go to any appliance dealer identified with this offer. (Look for the banner in his display window.) Compare the various makes of automatic dryers for yourself, choose the one you like best of all—and, subject to normal installation requirements, it will be installed in your home absolutely free for the trial period.

You risk nothing!

Give the dryer a real workout for 10 days. Then if you decide to return it, no matter what your reason—the dryer will be removed and there will be no charge of any sort. If, on the other hand, you decide to keep the dryer permanently, you can own it for just a small down payment and a few dollars a week.

Why P. G. and E. and your appliance dealer make this unusual offer

We want you to prove for yourself these four facts:

1. An automatic dryer does away with your hardest household chore . . . because it puts an end to all the back-breaking lugging, stooping, pinning-up and taking-in you go through now.

2. An automatic dryer does a better drying job than the sun . . . because it gets your clothes as much as 30% fluffier, gives them far more fresh-air fragrance. What's more, it ends all your washday worries over rain, soot and wind!

3. An automatic dryer cuts down on ironing . . . because sheets and towels come out practically wrinkle-free, ready to fold away!

4. An automatic dryer costs only pennies a week to operate . . . thanks to P. G. and E.'s low, low rates.

Hurry! Free offer ends March 31st!

In order to get your 10-day trial, you must go to your appliance dealer no later than March 31st. We urge you to see him today, while he still has a large selection.

Choose your trial dryer from any of these famous makes

Visitors From Wyoming

On Tuesday Mrs. Roy Wyland and her sister, Miss Pearl Savage, will leave for their home in Rawlins, Wyoming, ending a three-week visit to Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler. Owners of the Willow Dell Ranch near Rollins, Mrs. Wyland and Miss Savage spend their summers on the ranch and their winters in Rawlins. They plan now to come to Carmel some of the time, too, they are so pleased with their stay here.

Spencers Plan Europe Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer are busy making plans for a European trip. They expect to leave Los Angeles on April 4 on a Scandinavian trans-polar flight to Copenhagen, then immediately continue by air to Rome. While in Italy they plan to go to Perugia to see ceramics and to Florence to look over leather products. As the trip is really an experimental buying trip for their store they will attend four European Trade Fairs, in Munich, Milan, Basle and Paris, respectively. The Spencers will also visit Nuremberg, Salzburg and England before returning to Carmel on June 1. "If this is a successful trip, we hope to make it an annual event", says Mr. Spencer.

Ski Pilgrimage to Pear Lake

Francis Whitaker, Max Forstl and Sandy Stewart are leaving this afternoon for their annual high altitude ski pilgrimage to Pear Lake in Sequoia National Park. "We expect to hit 11,000 feet or better", says Francis. They will drive to Wolverton, don skis, settle packs containing food and sleeping gear and then ski to Pear Lake National Park Service Ski Hut which will be headquarters for three days of ski exploration of the surrounding high slopes. On Sunday evening they will glide down to Wolverton and return to Carmel.

Audubon Society To Pinnacles

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society's Field trip scheduled for Monday will have Pinnacles National Monument as its destination. Members planning to attend are asked to meet at 10:00 o'clock in the morning at the Pinnacles checking station and to bring their lunches. Anyone needing transportation should phone Dr. R. P. Parsons, 7-4364.

Millards in Santa Barbara

Mrs. Everett Millard of Highland Park, Illinois, was surprised when she arrived at Rancho San Ysidro in Santa Barbara last week end and was unexpectedly greeted by her son, Malcolm, and his wife, Ann, who had driven down from Carmel to welcome her when she arrived. Also surprised was Malcolm Millard's aunt, Mrs. John H. Harmon, of Lake Forest, Illinois, who accompanied his mother to California. Mrs. Millard and Mrs. Harmon plan to remain at Rancho San Ysidro for the rest of March and then will come to Carmel. During the time they are in Santa Barbara they will be visited again by Mr. Millard and his daughter, Wendy, who arrives from Colorado Rocky Mountain School in Carbondale, Colorado, on March 19 to spend her spring vacation with her father and go south with him to see her grandmother while she is in California.

Israel Discussion For WAC

Avraham Biram, Consul General of the State of Israel for 11 western states, will discuss The Middle East At The Crossroads for the World Affairs Council on Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Monterey USO. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Biram is a third generation Israeli whose grandparents took part in the founding of Rosh Pina in Galilee and Petah Tikva in the Sharon Valley. He attended the newly founded Hebrew University in Jerusalem before coming to the United States for one year at the University of Pennsylvania and four at Johns Hopkins.

On returning to Israel, Avraham Biram, served as assistant military governor for the newly founded State of Israel and took an active part in Israeli - Jordan armistice negotiations.

Professor Thomas Smith, scheduled to speak to World Affairs members tomorrow evening, has announced that he will be unable to come to the peninsula and the meeting has been cancelled.

Officers of the Monterey Peninsula World Affairs Council for 1956-57 are Captain C. Tod Singleton, president; Hans von Richter, Mrs. Fletcher Dutton and William Gahagan, first, second and third vice-presidents respectively. Corresponding secretary is Mrs. Alistair McKay; treasurer; Miss Theodosia Winfree and recording secretary, Miss Ethel Soliday.

Dan And Lilith James Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Dan James arrived on Friday from Los Angeles to visit Dan's mother, Mrs. D. L. James of Carmel Highlands and accompany her to San Francisco, where she entered the University of California Hospital for treatment of an eye condition. On Wednesday they visited their older daughter, Barbara, in Palo Alto where she is a sophomore at Stanford. While they were away their younger daughter, Kathy, remained in Carmel as the guest of Lucinda and Marjory Lloyd and attended Sunset School as the guest of Tasha Doner and Honey Williams, both in Miss Desmond's fifth grade. Dan, active in local theatricals before the war, left Carmel to assist Charles Chaplin in the filming of The Dictator and subsequently, with Lilith, as co-author, wrote the book and lyrics for Bloomer Girl which had a successful run on Broadway.

Foundation Benefited by MPVS

The Carmel Foundation will receive $2,900 from the Monterey Peninsula Services as the result of the recent MPVS flower arrangement event at the Pebble Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Noel J. Poux.

Results were announced at the group's general meeting Friday. New MPVS members introduced at this time were Mrs. A. A. Arehart, Mrs. Hartley G. Dewey, Mrs. Glen F. Mason, Mrs. Carvel Wheeler and Mrs. Ralph Wood.

Mrs. Lorraine Luker, executive director of the Family Service Agency, described in detail some of the services of the agency's full-time psychiatric worker whose salary is sponsored by MPVS.

P.T.A. Potluck Dinner

Parents of students at Sunset School are invited to attend a Potluck Dinner on Tuesday evening. Those with children in Grades 4, 5 and 6 are asked to arrive at 6:00 o'clock, and those with children in Grades 7 and 8 at 6:30. The staggered arrival times are to avoid long waiting in line to be served.

The program for the evening starts at 7:30 o'clock in the auditorium when music will be played by the Sunset School Band under Arthur Holman; songs by the school choir under the direction of Mrs. Doris Demirelli. The program will be concluded with a skit by the Eighth Grade Drama Club under the supervision of Miss Eleanor Cence.

Pupils taking part in the program are invited to have dinner with their parents. Tuesday night's dinner and program will be March meeting of the Carmel Parent-Teacher Association.

Mary Helen Jordan Here

Mrs. Jack Jordan (Mary Helen Alexander) spent two days in Carmel this week. She reports her husband, Jack, is now permanent-temporary tax assessor for San Mateo County. This means that each year he spends six months assessing San Mateo property and for six months does not work for the county assessor's office thus giving him the temporary-permanent rating. In his spare time Jack is pitman for Greg Teaby when the latter enters his car in sports races. Jack's father, the late Jack Jordan, Sr., was a former mayor of Carmel and owner of Pine Inn.

Booklovers To Meet

The third monthly meeting of Booklovers will be held at Town House on Monday afternoon, from 3:00 to 4:00 o'clock. The program will be an open discussion of notable authors whom members have met. Herbert Heron had a wide acquaintance with the early Carmel writers, and many other members of the group have met contemporary writers. All are welcome to join this informal discussion group.

Healeys In Hawaii

Sixty persons gathered on the Lurline before sailing time on Monday for a gay bon voyage party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Healey of Town House Lodge who were about to sail for Hawaii and three weeks vacation in Honolulu. Besides Carmel friends of the Healeys there were guests from Oakland and San Francisco where the Healeys lived before coming here.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How faith advanced to spiritual understanding of God provides the answer to sin, lack, and other discords will be brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Substance" at Christian Science services Sunday.

From the King James Version of the Bible will be read the following (Romans 14:22): "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God."

Among the passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following (23:16): "Faith, if it be mere belief, is as a pendulum swinging between nothing and something, having no fixity. Faith, advanced to spiritual understanding, is the evidence gained from Spirit, which rebukes sin of every kind and establishes the claims of God."

The Golden Text is from Hebrews (11:1): "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

City Council Frowns On Citizens' Committee As Forum Sponsor

sors, the two holdover councilmen and the three incumbents who are up for re-election agreed.

Also, the council thought the Citizens' committee's intention of making the main issue of the meeting a quizzing of the candidates on their understanding and opinion of an as yet non-existent master plan, unfortunate and "unfair."

In his letter to the council, George Bestor, chairman of the committee, said, "At this meeting the candidates will be asked to express their views on the general problem of protecting Carmel's future through long range planning and on the specific objectives of the plan as determined by the Planning Commission."

The council members said that no "specific objectives of the plan as determined by the Planning Commission" had come to their official attention as a council. If they would be at a loss to answer such a question, how would the new candidates be able to answer? It was at this point that the three councilmen who are running for re-election said that such questions would be "unfair."

Bestor's letter concluded: "The Advisory Committee in no way intends to endorse or oppose any candidate for the council or to express approval or disapproval of any stand taken by any candidate at the above meeting or any other time. But it does feel that the problems studied by the Committee and the Plan as it is eventually adopted and carried out are of such importance to the people of Carmel that all others should have an opportunity to ascertain each candidate's view in the matter and to pass judgment on his understanding of the problems."

Mayor Horace Lyon commended the Citizens' Advisory Committee on their enthusiasm, re-iterated that they had done a good job in drawing up an outline of policy for the guidance of Larry Livingston, the professional planner who has been hired to work out a master plan, and added that when there is a plan to support their services will be welcome.

The Council rescinded its acceptance of Vincent Torras' resignation as fire chief, requesting him to continue in the post until a replacement could be found for him.

Jack Henry of the Arcada Fire Department had been offered the job but declined last week when he received a promotion and raise in pay in the Arcada fire department.

Two major street improvement projects were approved. Junipero, from Ocean Avenue to Eighth Street, grading and surfacing; Sixth Avenue from Monte Verde to Sixth, new surface.

Hearing On Top Soil Removal On March 27

The County Planning Commission has set a public hearing on March 27 to consider the request of John A. Maschmeyer, Pacific Grove fertilizer salesman, to remove topsoil from property immediately north of Garrapata Creek Bridge on the western side of Highway No. 1.

Maschmeyer's removal operations were stopped on February 16 by the County Planning Commission on grounds that he had not applied to the Regional Advisory Board to the Planning Commission for a permit to excavate.

The regional committee, headed by Malcolm Millard of Carmel Highlands, will consider Maschmeyer's request before the public hearing on March 27 and make their recommendations to the Planning Commission at that time.

AUDUBON SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

At its monthly meeting, Friday, the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society awarded three full scholarships to the summer Audubon camp at Norden. The recipients were: Elmer E. Highley, science teacher, Monterey High School; Edwin L. Hixson, ranger, Point Lobos State Park; Carl G. Lonnecker, Big Sur State Park.

Mr. George D. Russell was appointed to fill out the term of the late Rollin Wells as treasurer. The Rollin H. Wells Memorial Fund was started and $18 was donated to help buy the Rangers at Point Lobos a telescope.

A film, Harvest of the Sea, by the Scripps Institute at La Jolla showed the harvesting and processing of kelp, the by product, Algen being included in many products in daily use.

Mrs. William Hatton invited the club to hold its annual meeting at her Calera Canyon Ranch the first Sunday in May. Mrs. Grace Paca of Pacific Grove will be the speaker at the April meeting of the society.

Martin, chairman of the present committee helping to formulate zoning as now exists. The zoning of the coast line south of Carmel then established has been regarded as far-sighted but rather broad in interpretation and the County Planning Commission feels that the time has come to re-evaluate coast property in the event of future development and establish a Master Plan which will protect and at the same time be fair to residents and organizations immediately interested in the region.

NEW NAMES FOR PLAQUE

Two names, those of William Sharp and Ered McIndoo, are to be added to the War Memorial in Devendorf Plaza, according to Alvin Chaffin, commander of the Carmel American Legion Post. Both lost their life in World War II.

The Legion is anxious to find out if there are other World War II names that should be placed on the memorial, and ask for information about any Carmel man or woman who was killed in the war, went to Carmel schools and resided in the community and whose name is not already on the stone in the park.

Information should be sent to Box 512, Carmel.

NO FESTIVAL THIS YEAR

There will be no Art Festival this year. Yesterday afternoon members of the Art Festival Association Committee withdrew from last night's City Council agenda their request to close off part of Ocean Avenue and two blocks on Dolores Street for the event.

The committee thinks it is too late properly to plan the event for this year and will devote their time adequately to preparing for a Spring Festival in 1957.
